II.

Almost 200 people in Taiwan changed their names to "salmon" only because they wanted to eat free sushi from a restaurant.

A Japanese restaurant offered a two-day promotion on March 17 and 18. The restaurant said that any customer whose name included the Chinese characters for "salmon," or gui yu, would get a free all-you-can-eat sushi meal for themselves and five friends.

However, when many people started changing their names to "salmon" to get free sushi, it caused a lot of extra work for the government. This is so called "salmon chaos" in Taiwan.

In Taiwan, it costs less than $3 for someone to change their name. People can only change names for three times. It means people would have to keep their new names if they already changed them twice before. Unluckily, a man changed his name for the promotion but didn't know his mother already did it twice when he was a child. Now, he is a real "salmon".

Comments:

Lillian: These guys lost their mind. They are crazy!

Andrew: Salmon chaos is so terrible. Now, we can see so many fish eating themselves at the sushi restaurant.

Tina: What happened to those young people? I think there must be something wrong with our education.

Steven: Come on! It's a free meal. Why not?
